One change can make a difference

PUBLISHED: MAY 8, 2008

The Hamburg School Environmental Club members asked the adults at a recent Hamburg School PTA meeting if they could do just one thing for the earth. Students gave their audience tips on simple changes they could make in their daily living to help the environment. The Earth Day presentation raised awareness of the choices people can make and the consequences of these choices to the well being of the world. "These children worked hard to prepare their presentation tips to the adults on how to help our earth, but even more importantly they learned volumes themselves, simply by being in the role of a teacher," said Kerri Yezuita, club advisor. "Both the PTA and the Environmental Club learned a lot more about ways to help our environment and everyone promised to take some action to do one green thing for our earth," said Aubrey McCann, club member for two years.
